

To members of the
FCC:

I am appalled that Sinclair Broadcasting is being permitted to have its stations
show a flagrantly anti-Kerry piece of propaganda. If it does indeed air, it will amount to free air time for the Republican party.

With fewer but larger media
operations
controlling the airwaves today, it becomes even more critical for your agency to guarantee that no one political party--regardless of its level of connection and privilege--has more free access to airtime than another. Without proper regulation,
businesses like Sinclair will make choices aimed at improving profits
rather than at providing rich and varied programming
that reflects a variety of viewpoints.

Aren't companies
like Sinclair
obligated to serve the public interest
if they wish to maintain their operating license?

Apparently not.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Lindsmith
